

CURRICULUM VITAE

Rosario D'Anna was born in Messina (Italy) in 1954. In 1978, he took his degree in Medicine getting full marks and distinction at the University of Messina. In 1982, at the same University, he was specialized in Obstetrics and Gynecology, getting full marks and distinction. From 1980 to 2002 he was a researcher at the Institute of Obstetrics and Gynecology of Messina University. In 2002, after a national competition, he became an associate professor and he was called by the University of Messina. In 2014, he became full professor in the same University. Actually, he is the Director of the School of Specialization in Obstetrics and Gynecology and coordinates the second channel of the teaching of Obstetrics and Gynecology for the degree in Medicine.

He is the responsible for the Gynecological curriculum in a PhD course: "Biotechnology in Medicine and Surgery".

He is author and coauthor of 95 publications assessed in the ICI and SCOPUS catalogue. He is a requested referee for many journals and he is invited as speaker in national and International congresses. In 2002, as responsible of a Research Unit, he obtained from the Italian Ministry of Research funds for the program: "Protective effects of the phytoestrogen genistein on bone in post-menopausal women". Furthermore, he participated in another research program funded by the Italian Ministry of Research: "Role of genistein in the metabolic syndrome of post-menopausal women".