

Sokratis G. Papageorgiou, MD, PhD, FANA, is a Behavioral Neurologist and Associate Professor of Neurology and Neuropsychology, Head of the Cognitive Disorders/Dementia Unit at the 2nd Department of Neurology, University of Athens Medical School. His research interests and publications include the cognitive and behavioral aspects of the various dementing diseases as well as the characterization of atypical, early-onset and rapidly progressive cases. Most recently he is conducting research on the driving behavior of patients with cognitive disorders due to neurodegenerative disease.