

Maria Stamelou, MD, PhD, FEAN is assistant professor of Neurology in Philipps University, Marburg, Germany, Head of Parkinson's disease and movement disorders Dept. in HYGEIA Hospital, Athens, Greece and collaborating Movement Disorders specialist in the Department of Neurology, Attikon Hospital, University of Athens, Greece. She has trained in Neurology in the Philipps University Marburg, Germany and specialized in Movement Disorders in the Sobell Dept. of Motor Neurosciences and Movement Disorders, UCL, Queen Square, UK. Her main clinical research area is Parkinson's disease and atypical parkinsonian syndromes. She has published numerous papers and books on Movement Disorders and has been invited as a speaker in numerous International Movement Disorders meetings.