Dr. Eytan R. Barnea, MD, FACOG is the founder and chairman of the Society for the Investigation of Early Pregnancy (SIEP). He investigates embryo-derived signaling in pregnancy, translating such observations into clinical applications in pregnancy and immune disorders.

Dr. Barnea discovered PreImplantation Factor (PIF) and investigates its translation to diagnostic and therapeutic applications. For this, he forged the inter-disciplinary Barnea research group which is comprised of ~20 universities and centers of excellence worldwide.

In 1989, he received the Elkeles Prize ‘Scientist of the Year in Medicine’ from the Israel Health Ministry/Jewish National Fund and in 2012 he was awarded the Bratanov medal and prize of the ISIR - International Society of Immunology of Reproduction for his contribution to the development of Immunology.

Eytan is double board certified in obstetrics, gynaecology and reproductive endocrinology. He is a full-time dedicated clinician and the Director of Obstetrics and Gynaecology at CAMcare.
