

Stefan Mauss, has specialised in Gastroenterology and Hepatology in 1996 at the Heinrich-Heine-University Duesseldorf, Germany. He is a cofounder of the Center for HIV and Hepatogastroenterology in Duesseldorf in 1999. His main research interests are complications of antiretroviral therapy, HCV and HBV infections and the interactions of HIV and hepatitis viruses in coinfecting patients. He has published more than 100 papers in peer reviewed journals and is editing several books including "Hepatology – a clinical textbook".